October 21st, Beijing - The biannual Sino-Swiss Business Awards announced this year's winners of eight categories at an exclusive gala evening attended by political and business dignitaries including Ambassador of Switzerland to China H.E. Bernardino Regazzoni at the China World Summit Wing on Thursday.

After four successful editions in 2013, 2015, 2017 and 2019, this is the fifth edition of the Sino-Swiss Business Awards in Beijing. In different categories, the Awards celebrated the efforts of many Swiss and Chinese companies, particularly for their leadership, transparency, and commitment to sustainable business practices. Companies also showcased distinct results and high level of dedication to the Sino-Swiss business community, Swiss foreign trade and the promotion of Switzerland in China and vice-versa.

categories, with more than 80 applications received. Aligning with this year's key focus on sustainability, STOR-H, with their efforts in promoting clean energy and enabling zero CO2 mobility, won the Swissnex Award for the Most Innovative Start-up.

The four winners of the sustainable awards were the biggest surprises of the night. Buhler won the Award of Sustainable High-Tech and Financial Solutions with its innovation for a better world; by taking actions along the whole value chain Nestlé was the winner in the category of Sustainable Production and Supply Chain; the manufacturer of mountain spring beer Brauerei Locher AG received the Nestlé award for Health and Environmental Responsibility, while the Swiss engineering giant ABB received the Award for Social Responsibility, Diversity and Education.
