Switzerland and China continue financial dialogue

On Tuesday, September 1, high-ranking representatives of the financial market authorities and the central banks of Switzerland and China met in Beijing for a further round of the financial dialogue which was started two years ago. The discussions focused on developments in the financial markets, the further expansion of bilateral cooperation regarding financial matters and in particular the role of Switzerland as an offshore renminbi market and cooperation within the International Monetary Fund (IMF), in the Financial Stability Board and in the G20. Thereafter, on 2 September, financial sector representatives from both countries will also meet for a second series of round-table talks in the presence of authority representatives.

With the regular financial dialogue, Switzerland and China maintain and strengthen cooperation between the authorities in both countries which are responsible for international financial matters. The meeting on 1 September was the third one, following on from those which took place in 2013 and 2014.

In addition, bilateral meetings were held with the Ministry of Finance, the newly established Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), the State Administration of Taxation and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The focus of this year's meetings in Beijing was on international developments in the financial markets and international monetary matters, the further expansion of bilateral cooperation in financial matters and mutual market access, the role of Switzerland as an offshore renminbi market and cooperation in multilateral bodies such as the IMF, the Financial Stability Board, the G20 and the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank. Both sides agreed to continue cooperation in the areas under discussion and to further facilitate the internationalisation of the renminbi through Switzerland, including enabling the direct trading of currencies and further use of Chinese investment quota programmes.
